Sentences

When we read or speak, we read and speak in sentences. A sentence is a group of words that tells a complete thought. It tells who or what. Sentences usually tell or ask something.

Types of Sentences:

A sentence that tells something is a statement. It ends with a period (.).

Examples: The wolf howls at the moon.
My lion likes to sleep in the basket.

A sentence that asks something is a question. It ends with a question mark (?).

Examples: Have you seen my monkey?
Where is his hat and shoes?

A command is a sentence that tells you to do something. It ends with a period (.).

Examples: Put the parrot on your shoulder.
Don't feed the bears.

An exclamation is a sentence that shows strong feelings of surprise, fear or excitement. It ends with an exclamation point (!).

Examples: The bear is chasing me!
The tiger jumped over the fence!

Creative Sentence Writing

(Use correct punctuation marks.)

Write 3 sentences that make a statement about the animals at the zoo.

Write 3 sentences that ask a question about the animals at the zoo.

Write 3 sentences that give a command to the animals at the zoo.

Write 3 exclamatory sentences about all the exciting animals you saw at the zoo.

Punctuation Marks

When you are reading, you should pay special attention to punctuation marks. They help you better understand what you are reading.

A period (.) comes at the end of a complete sentence.

Examples: The alligator swims in the lake.
The lion chased his tail.

A question mark (?) comes at the end of a question.

Examples: Did you see the bird? How old is that monkey?

An exclamation point (!) follows an exclamation statement or strong feelings.

Examples: The python got out of his cage!
The bullfrog jumped on my hand!

Quotation marks (“ ”) set off someone’s exact words from the rest of a sentence.

Examples: Joe said, “We want to see the Elephants.”
Mary said, “That is my green parakeet.”

An apostrophe (') is used to show ownership or used in place of missing letters.

Examples: tiger’s, lion’s, bear’s, eagle’s, bird’s can’t (cannot), I’m (I am), weren’t (were not), we’re (we are).

Special Note: Follow these suggestions when reading.

You should always slow down at a comma (,).

You should stop at a period (.).

You should read as if you are asking a question at a question mark (?).

You should also show strong feelings at an exclamation mark (!).

Quotation marks (“ ”) are used at the beginning and ending of a person’s exact words.

Using Punctuation Marks

Write 3 sentences about the zoo. Use a period at the end of each sentence.

Write 3 sentences about the animals at the zoo. Use question marks at the end of each sentence.

Write 3 sentences that give a command to the animals at the zoo. Use a period at the end of each sentence.

Write 3 sentences that shows strong feelings about your exciting day at the zoo. Use an exclamation mark at the end of each sentence.

Write 3 sentences about the zoo that use quotation marks.

Write 3 sentences about the zoo that show ownership of an object or thing. Use an apostrophe to show ownership.

Capitalization

Rules for capitalization

Every sentence should begin with a capital letter.

The boy ran to see the animals at the zoo.

My cat is a pretty color.

The pronoun I is always a capital letter.

The man and I are friends.

Mommy and I are going to town.

Begin each important word in the names of particular persons, places or things (proper nouns) with a capital letter.

John George Betty New Jersey Washington, D.C. Liberty Bell

Titles or their abbreviations when used with a person's name begin with a capital letter.

Mrs. James Mrs. Jones Doctor Adams

Begin the names of days, months, and holidays with a capital letter.

Labor Day is on the first Monday in September.

The first and last words and all important words in the titles of books begin with a capital letter. Titles of books are underlined.

The Lady and the Tramp The Boy Who Cried Wolf

Using Capital Letters

Write 3 sentences and use a capital letter on the first word.

Write 3 sentences and capitalize the pronoun “I” in the sentence.

Write 3 sentences with two proper nouns in each sentence. Capitalize the proper nouns.

Write 3 sentences with peoples’ names with a title or an abbreviation. Capitalize the name, title and abbreviations.

Write 3 sentences about days, months or holidays. Capitalize the days, months and holidays.

Write 3 sentences and use the title of a book in each sentence. Capitalize the first, last and all important words in the titles.

Synonyms, Antonyms & Homonyms

Synonyms are words with almost the same meaning.

Examples: small - little, big - large, round - circle, began - started, noisy - loud.

Antonyms are words which are opposite in meaning.

Examples: happy - sad, up - down, high - low, light - heavy, hard - easy, worse - better, big - little, slow - fast

Homonyms are words that sound alike but have different meanings.

Examples: whole - hole, hear - here, fair – fare, bear-bare

Synonyms, Antonyms & Homonyms (Applications)

Write a synonym for the following words.

circle _____ large _____ little _____ loud _____ begin _____

Write two sentences and use at least two synonyms in each sentence.

to too two

Write two sentences and use two sets of homonyms.

Write 10 sets of homonym words.

Root Words, Prefixes & Suffixes

Root words are the base words of the English Language. Adding prefixes and suffixes to base word makes many new words.

Sample root words: graph, tract, script, dict, duct, port, tele, man junct, sect, ped, leg, port, mit, spect

Prefixes are syllables added to the beginning of words to change their meaning.

Sample prefixes: ab-, ad-, ante-, anti-, circum-, con-, de-, dis-, ex-, in-, inter-, intro-, mis-, per-, post-, pre-, re-, se-, sub-, super- trans-, un-, uni-.

Sample prefix words: ab sent, ad mit, ante rior, anti freeze circum stance, con tract, de part, ex tend, in come, inter rupt, intro duce, mis take, per form, post pone, pre vent, re turn, se lect, sub due, super human, trans plant, un happy, uni form.

Suffixes are letters added to the end of words to make new words.

Sample suffixes: -al, -ate, -ic, -ful, -ish, -ity, -ance, -tive, -tion,
-ous, -tial,

Sample words with suffixes: person al, evalu ate, bas ic, hope ful, fool ish, self ish, liabil ity, posi tive, addi tion, fam ous, par tial.

Using Root Words, Prefixes and Suffixes

Underline the root word in the following words.

telephone dictate retract graphic deduct

Use the root words below and write 2 sentences.

Sample root words: graph, tract, script, dict, duct, port, tele

Underline the prefix in each word below.

unhappy uniform prevent return select contract depart
antifreeze income subdue

Use the prefixes below to write 2 sentences.

Sample prefixes: ab-, ad-, ante-, anti-, circum-, con-, de-, dis-, ex-, in-, inter-, intro-, mis-, per-, post-, pre-, re-, se-, sub-, super-, trans-, un-, uni-.

Underline the suffix in each word below.

basic foolish hopeful running jumper addition working famous partial positive

Use the suffixes below and write 3 sentences.

Sample suffixes: -al, -ate, -ic, -ful, -ish, -ity, -ance, -tive, -tion,
-ous, -tial,

Dividing Words into Syllables

Rule 1 The number of vowels heard, not the number of vowels in the word, determines the number of syllables in a word.

Examples: one syllable: bird, cat, wolf, claw, wing, fish two syllables: vul ture, par rot, py thon, liz ard, co bra

Rule 2 When there are two consonants between two vowels, the syllable division is usually between the two consonants. Vowel Consonant Consonant Vowel {VCCV} is the pattern found in words for this rule.

Examples: but/ter bal/loon lad/der mon/key cab/bage ob/ject

Exception to the Vowel Consonant Consonant Vowel (VCCV) Rule is when the letters ph, gh, sh, ch, th, ng are used in the middle of a word. Sometimes the syllable division is before and sometimes it is after the digraphs.

Examples: go/ph er hy/phen sing/er fath/er cash/ier catch/er

Rule 3 When a consonant is between two vowels, the syllable division is usually before the consonant. Vowel Consonant Vowel (VCV) is the pattern found in words for this rule.

Examples: o/pen ti/ger pa/per to/tem fa/tal pi/lot i/tem ve/to tu/lip Rule 4 When a word ends in le with a consonant before the l, the pattern is “consonant le or Cle”. The combination Cle forms a syllable.

Examples: sim/ple pur/ple sam/ple mar/ble tan/gle sta/ble sin/gle ta/ble

Rule 5 When a word is composed of two complete words to make a compound word, the word is divided between the two words.

Examples: some/where fire/works cow/boy horn/bill

Rule 6 When -ed is added to a word that ends in a t or d sound, the -ed is a separate syllable.

Examples. bolt ed, part ed, post ed, halt ed, ward ed, herd ed, add ed

Rule 7 When -ed is added to a word that does not end in a t or d sound, -ed is not a separate syllable.

Examples. walked, tramped, jumped

Rule 8 Generally the division of a word into syllables is not changed by the addition of a suffix.

Example. paint er, fall ing, farm er, stock ing.

Divide the following words into syllables.

butter balloon ladder monkey cabbage object

open tiger paper totem fatal cobra item parrot tulip simple purple vulture marble tangle stable single lizard

somewhere fireworks cowboy hornbill bolted parted posted halted warded herded added

painter falling farmer stocking

Decoding Skills Clues

The r gives the preceding vowel a sound that is neither short or long.

Examples: her, hard, fir, hurt

Words having a double e usually have the long e sound.

Examples: reed, keep, seen, feet

In ay the y is silent and gives a its long sound.

Examples: hay, way, lay, play, may

When y is the final letter in a word, it usually has a vowel sound.

Examples: by, try, my, why

When c is followed by e or i, the sound of s is likely to be heard.

Examples: cent, city, cinder, cell

When the letter c is followed by o or a, the sound of k is likely to be heard.

Examples: coat, candy, cat, cold

When ght is seen in a word, gh is silent.

Examples: light, right, tight, might

When two of the same consonants are side by side, only one is heard.

Examples: letter, middle, pretty, pulling

When a word ends in ck, it has the same last sound as in look.

Examples: duck, luck

When spelling a word with ei or ie, most words have an i before e except after c.

Clues:

ie makes the sound of e

ei (after c) says the sound of e ei (without c) has the sound of a

Examples: pie, receive, piece, rein, perceive

Using Decoding Skills

Mark over the vowel that is long with a and cross out the vowel that is silent.

Example: seat hay reed feet say play keep lay seen heel way

Write five words with vowels influenced by the letter r.

Example: tar

Write the sound k or s for c in each word below.

 city cold cent coat cinder cot
 cell candy center color

Underline the gh in each word below. Then write the sounds heard in each word.

Example: night nit

fight light might tight flight right

Mark out each y and change to an i sound.

Example: why whi

my try by why cry dye sty dry ply fry

Parts of Speech

Sentences are made up of words. Each of these words can be categorized into one of the eight parts of speech. Each sentence must have a subject and verb.

The eight parts of speech are nouns, pronouns, verbs, adverbs, adjectives, prepositions, conjunctions and interjections.

A noun is a word that names a person, place, thing or idea.

Samples: boy, girl, John, Mary, zoo, town, Washington, monkey, boat

A pronoun is a word that is used in place of one or more nouns. It may stand for a person place or thing or an idea.

Samples: I, you, me, she, it, they, someone, this, those, who

A verb is a word that expresses action or helps make a statement.

Samples: run, jump, look, go, feel, is, are, were

An adjective modifies or describes a noun or pronoun.

Sample: red, black, quick, fast, slow, ugly, bad, fat

An adverb modifies or describes a verb, adjective or another adverb.

Samples: quickly, slowly, how, when, where,

A preposition introduces a noun, pronoun or a phrase in the sentence.

Samples: of, for, be, from, about, under, during, after, on,

A conjunction is a word that joins words or groups of words.

Samples: and, or, but, either, neither, nor

An interjection is an exclamatory word that expresses strong emotion.

Samples: Wow! Help! Oh! Great! Fantastic!

Parts of Speech - Activities

How to Improve Reading Comprehension

1. Get in a quiet place where you are comfortable and relaxed.
2. Turn off the radio, television or other distractions.
3. Preview what you are about to read. Look at the table of contents and skim materials. Look at titles, subtitles, and pictures.
4. Concentrate and focus while you are reading.
5. Look for main ideas when reading.
6. Look for details about the main ideas while you read.
7. Pay special attention to the first couple of sentences in each paragraph.
8. Pay special attention to the last sentence in each paragraph.
9. When reading, try to answer the following questions: who, what, when, where, why, and how.
10. Reread materials you do not understand.
11. Read slowly if materials are difficult. Make sure you understand exactly what the author is saying.
12. Try to predict and anticipate what the author is going to write about next.
13. Study the pictures, graphs, headings and bold face print for clues about the materials you are reading.
14. Highlight, summarize, review and take notes about important ideas.
15. Use context clues (other words in a sentence) to find the meaning of unknown words.
16. Use the dictionary to look up words you do not understand.
17. Try to visualize what the scenes, characters and surroundings look like.
18. Relate the reading materials to your personal experiences.
20. Compare your predictions to what really happened in the text.
21. Reflect on the major ideas of the text.
22. Ask yourself, 'Did I understand what the author was trying to say to me'.
23. Talk to someone or write about what you have read.
24. Read for enjoyment and have fun.

Tips to Improve Writing Skills

(Characteristics of Effective Writing Programs)

Students need daily opportunities to write.

Students need to share their writing with others often.

Students need to choose their own topics that are important to them.

Students need to participate with others in prewriting activities (brainstorming).

Students need to practice a variety of different types of writing.
(fiction, nonfiction, fantasy, legends, poetry....)

Students should do more than one draft of their writing.

Students should write as a group and have collaborative writing experiences.

Students should have writing folders to display their best work.

Narratives:

A narrative tells a story or tells about what happened. The narrative should tell about the order of events (beginning, middle and end), describe the setting (where story takes place), and tell about the characters (people in the story).

The two types of narratives are personal narratives and imaginative narratives.

In a personal narrative the students tell about things which they have experienced, read about, or heard. The writer has to recall events that were experienced.

An imaginative narrative is when a student writes about things that are imagined or fantasized. The writer has to invent the characters, plot, and settings.

The Narrative Should Include:

Beginning - The story or narrative should begin in an interesting way (hook the reader). It should do the following: introduce the characters, briefly give the setting for the story, create the mood (state the point of view), and get to the situation or problem (point or plot of the story).

Middle - The middle is where you build on the story by telling the details about the situation or problem. You must use evidence to support the main idea, move the story along with details and elaboration, keep things in order, and reach the peak of the story (the climax).

End - The end of the story tells about how the problem or situation is resolved. It may have an exciting or unexpected ending. The action should gradually come to an end.

When you write you should answer these five questions:

Who?

What?

When?

Where?

How?

A Sample Narrative Writing Format

Beginning: Start the story telling.....

Who? Introduce the characters

Where? Describe the setting

When? Be specific

Middle: The middle of the story should tell....

First Event:

When?

What?

Who?

Where?

Second Event:

When?

What?

Who?

Where?

Third Event:

When?

What?

Who?

Where?

Ending: Allow the story and action to slowly and naturally come to an end.

The Writing Process

The writing process involves the following elements: prewriting, drafting, revision, editing, and publishing.

The prewriting process is the process of thinking and talking through the proposed writing assignment.

The drafting process is writing as students brain storm and let their ideas flow to the page.

The revision process is allowing the students to improve on their work. It may include: clarifying ideas, reorganizing work, changing word choices, deleting or adding to the written work, expanding or condensing ideas, polishing the written work, or other improvements to the work.

The editing process is the time to “clean up” your errors in spelling, grammar, usage and mechanics.

The evaluation process of writing is a continuous process from the beginning to the end. Students need to put down the paper often. They should come back to it and read it again, looking for ways to improve it.

Steps in the Writing Process

- 1. Choose a topic.
- 2. Make a list of key words to include in the paper.
- 3. Write a draft of the paper.
- 4. Make revisions.
- 5. Get others to look at your paper and ask for suggestions.
- 6. Make changes in the story.
- 7. Edit your story for capitalization, punctuation and spelling.
- 8. Ask for a conference with teacher or others.
- 9. Make last revisions to paper.
- 10. Prepare to publish your paper.

An Outline of the Writing Process

1. Prewriting

- B. Decide what you want to include
- C. Collect details and materials about your subject

2. Write First Draft

- A. Put all of your ideas on paper
- B. Don't worry about mistakes

3. Revise your work

- A. Read and review your work
- B. Share your work and ideas with someone else
- C. Make changes to improve your writing

4. Editing and Proofing

- A. Make sure your words and sentences make sense
- B. Check punctuation, spelling and capital letters
- C. Write final copy of your work
- D. Check once more for errors

5. Publishing

- A. Share your writing
- B. Submit work to teacher, class, book or newspaper
- C. Display your work with pride

Note: Always have a beginning, a middle and an end.

Note: Always answer the following: Who? What?
When? Where? How?

Generating Ideas for Writing (Brain Storming)

Introduction: Think about the first lines of your work.
Make them as interesting as possible.

Setting: Think about the setting and stage where your story is being played.

Characters: Think about the people who will play major roles in your story.

Climax: Think about ways you can build your story to become more and more exciting.

Ending: Think about how you will bring the story to a close.

Plot: What is the overall plan for the story or writing?

Narrative: Plan the story with a beginning, middle and end.

Dialogue: Talk to others about your narrative.

The Helping Circle

The helping circle gives the writer an opportunity to talk and interact with others and see what others think about his/her writing.

Positive Statements: All comments about a person's writing should be positive.

Summarize: Each member of the circle can comment about the main points of the writing.

Asking for Help: The writer can ask for help from the group to improve his writing.

Suggestions from the Group: Each member should give constructive suggestions about ways to improve the writing.
